Dear All,

You will, no doubt be aware that the Prime Minister has just announced that public exams will not take place this year. There is absolutely no reason for you to worry unduly about this: everyone in the UK – and indeed across the world – is in the same position and the Government have assured that you will have completely fair opportunities to get the qualifications you need and deserve.

Furthermore, you should not assume that this is the end of your educational journey or experience this year. The School is absolutely ready to continue to deliver your education throughout the year, be that in school, or remotely with you working at home under a School closure.

Mr Jackson will be in touch tomorrow to provide further information but for now, be kind to one another, support one another and don't worry – we are on your side. Your education will continue.

Thank you,

Dr Truss
